Welcome Letter

Dear Symposium Registrant:

On behalf of the members of the Board of Directors of the International Society of Crime Prevention Practitioners, I would like to thank-you for registering and attending the 2018 ISCPP Symposium. The ISCPP is dedicated to the reduction and control of criminal opportunity and victimization by stimulating the exchange of ideas among ISCPP members. The success of ISCPP is in many ways contingent upon its ability to rally and bring together professionals from a variety of disciplines. It is in this setting that meaningful discussions on matters of safety, security and lifestyles will continue to evolve.

I am sure that you will find our sessions useful and the topics and speakers engaging and thought provoking. I urge you to use this opportunity to introduce yourself to others and seek out or share an expertise that may be of interest to you. I further extend an invitation to speak to our Board members and consider becoming a member of the ISCPP if you have not already joined!

Once again, thank-you for helping to make this year's symposium a success.

Yours truly,

Tom McKay

Tom McKay, President Elect-Symposium Chair

Keynote Address: Education is Prevention - Robin Bleich |
Chair, International Association of Chiefs' of Police | Crime
Prevention Committee

Doing things alone is useless; doing them collaboratively is where the real work gets done. It is not about pride, it is not about ownership, it is not about reputation....it is about strength, collaboration, efficacy, cohesion, and courage. This session introduces the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) and its Crime Prevention Committee (CPC); emphasizing the importance of partnerships, while exploring current and prospective IACP CPC initiatives.

Robin Bleich, Chair, International Association of Chiefs' of Police Crime Prevention Committee

Robin, 33, is a 12-year veteran police officer with the Niagara Regional Police Service (NRPS). She's a post-secondary graduate student in police sciences and business communications; she is continuing her education through Athabasca University, working toward completing her Four-Year Bachelor of Professional Arts degree, with a major in Criminal Justice. In 2015, she accepted a two-year tenure nomination to sit on the International Association of Chiefs of Police's (IACP) Crime Prevention Committee — sitting among FBI Directors, Chiefs, Deputies, and Private Sector CEO's. Within 1.5 years, she has since extended her tenure and has been appointed Chair of the committee by the IACP President Dekmar— representing her organization as its lowest-ranking, youngest Canadian female, chairing an IACP committee. Robin has received numerous awards in community and industrial leadership, alumni accolades, OWLE; the most prestigious among them being IACP's 40 under 40; an international award recognizing 40 police officers globally. Robin has been dubbed an Agent of Change.

Robin pushes the barriers to bring public and private sectors together; dissolving silos, and developing a larger sense of collective efficacy. Her personal path serves as a precursor to advance her leadership in safety; to continue building transnational commitments to emergency intelligence globally.

Session A – Counterfeit Prevention and Detection; Oak Room A

The Bank of Canada is responsible for fighting counterfeit money by instilling confidence in the use of Canadian currency with the general public. This mandate is achieved with a number of approaches including Crime Prevention by using the education and awareness program developed specifically to stop the crime before the victimization.

Over the years the Bank has developed critical relationships with organizations in the Law Enforcement, Retail, Educational and Financial Institution sectors to achieve this goal. Representatives from the Bank will describe the history of the program along with techniques, initiatives, and partnerships developed to ensure the successful implementation of a Crime Prevention strategy in the fight against counterfeiting.

Manuel Parreira, Regional Director, Bank of Canada

Manuel Parreira was appointed Regional Director for the Bank of Canada's Ontario Regional Office in July 2007. In this capacity, he promotes the Bank across Ontario and delivers its products and services to key stakeholders.

His role includes building and maintaining relationships with financial and business communities, law enforcement and government agencies, educational institutions and the general public, who have a vested interest in currency.

Additional responsibilities include the Bank of Canada's Regional Office Outreach program, aimed at explaining the Bank's activities to the public, including a program to increase public awareness of the anti-counterfeiting features of Canadian bank notes.

In his 37 years of service, Mr. Parreira's experience has provided him with opportunities to work in various Bank departments with the main focus being on the currency function.

Session B - Designing for Transformational Change; Oak Room B

Most people turn to CPTED for its ability to reduce the fear and incidence of opportunity crime, yet CPTED can be more than its ability to manipulate the environment for the purpose of influencing desired behaviour. Learn how CPTED helped to act as a springboard to transform a problem plagued youth shelter into a place where homeless youth want to live, and in so doing, improved their quality of life.

Sean Scholes, Team Lead, SHIP

Sean Scholes is a Team Lead at the Peel Youth Village program of Services and Housing In the Province (SHIP). He has over 15 years of experience in the fields of addictions, mental health and supportive housing. His career has included positions in withdrawal management, problem gambling counselling, assertive community treatment, first episode psychosis, and transitional housing for homeless and at risk youth.

Tom McKay, ISCPP President-Elect

Tom McKay is internationally known for his CPTED and crime prevention expertise having served as crime prevention officer for 25 of his 32 years as a member of Peel Regional Police. Tom is President Elect of the International Society of Crime Prevention Practitioners (ISCPP), founding Chair of CPTED Ontario and a member of the International Association of Chiefs' of Police Crime Prevention Committee. Tom previously served as a former Director of the International CPTED Association (ICA) and has written numerous articles on CPTED. He also instructs CPTED courses throughout North America and is a recipient of numerous awards including the prestigious ISCPP George B. Sunderland Lifetime Achievement Award and the Herman Goldstein Excellence in Problem Solving award from the Police Executive Research Forum which identified him as a "subject matter expert". Tom remains active as a CPTED instructor and crime prevention consultant most recently as part of a consultant team for the Toronto Police Service.

This session will focus on how Peel Regional Police are using a proactive crime prevention approach to help convenience/gas-store retailers, pharmacies, and other businesses reduce incidents of crime while enhancing overall safety of the small business environment.

Cst. Amy Boudreau, Peel Regional Police-Crime Prevention

Cst. Amy Boudreau graduated from the University of Windsor with an Honours Bachelor's Degree in Sociology, and a minor in Criminology and Psychology, She holds a Professional Communications Certificate from the University of Toronto and is currently enrolled in a Leadership Certificate Program at the University of Waterloo. Cst. Boudreau has spent the last seven years as a police officer with Peel Regional Police and is currently assigned to Crime Prevention Services.

Amy is certified in Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) Level 1 and regularly conducts Security Audits for residential, commercial, and public spaces. Amy has appeared as a guest lecturer for the Ontario Convenience Store Association (OSCA) & Western Convenience Store Association (WCSA) Convenience U CARWACS Conference held in 2017 & 2018, has contributed a cover article in the Convenience and Carwash Canada magazine, and has recently published an article in Blue Line, one of Canada's leading law enforcement magazines.

Session B – Community Mobilization and Engagement; Oak Room B

The Halton Regional Police Service is widely known as one of the most progressive community policing services in Canada. It is recognized for award winning programs reaching out to partner with over 500,000 people in the diverse communities it serves. Members of our Community Mobilization Bureau will highlight how the Halton Police have been able to enhance communication and relationships between its officers and the public.

Cst. Ryan Smith, Halton Regional Police

Cst. Ryan Smith began his career with the Halton Regional Police Service in 2009 when he joined as a Cadet. After three years in uniform patrol he transferred to the Drug, Gun and Gang Unit where he investigated various criminal offences related to high level drug trafficking and illegal firearms possession. During this time, he also served a one year secondment in the Human Trafficking and Vice Unit investigating offences related to the trafficking of person's associated to prostitution.

In 2016, Cst. Smith moved into the Regional Community Mobilization Bureau which oversees several Region wide community initiatives. Cst. Smith has participated in several volunteer and community opportunities both within the Halton Regional Police Service and with outside agencies. These initiatives include sitting on committees for Our Kids Network, a Burlington Anti Bullying Task Force and the Halton Heroes Committee which has raised over $500,000 for Police officers families in the event of serious injury or death while on duty.

Plenary Session - *SNAP (Stop Now And Plan) - A Canadian-made Best Practice Built on More Than 32 Years of Evidence

This presentation will focus on a leading evidence-based, gender-specific, self-regulation model, Stop Now And Plan® (SNAP), as an example of best practice for middle years children (aged 6-11) and their parents. SNAP was developed in Toronto by the Child Development Institute as a cognitive-behavioural Crime Prevention strategy that teaches high risk children (and their parents) to regulate their emotions and increase self-control by getting them to stop and think before they act so they can make better choices ‘in the moment’– helping to keep them in school and out of trouble. This has led to the creation of happier, healthier and safer children, families and communities on both the national and international stage, and, in the process, maximized the positive impact of a program which has had the benefit of over 32 years of research and development through a scientist-practitioner lens behind it and is currently being positioned for a major scale up through the SNAP National Expansion campaign.

Dr. Leena K. Augimeri is Director of SNAP® Scientific and Program Development at the Child Development Institute and Adjunct Professor at the University of Toronto. This scientist-practitioner’s work over 32 years has focused on development, research, dissemination and implementation of SNAP (Stop Now And Plan), an evidence-based gender specific model, and a comprehensive crime prevention framework for young children with serious disruptive behaviour problems. She has authored numerous publications, conducted hundreds of presentations and keynote addresses and received several prestigious awards, including the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health’s (CAMH) Difference Makers Award (150 leading Canadians for mental health), Prime Minister’s Regional Social Innovation Award, the Elizabeth Manson Award for exemplary contributions to the promotion of children’s mental health and the inaugural CWLC’s inaugural Outstanding Achievement Research and Evaluation Award. Dr. Augimeri is currently leading a SNAP National Expansion in Canada using a venture philanthropy framework bringing together government, business/corporate, foundations and philanthropic donors to create massive social change within children’s mental health by scaling SNAP to 140 new communities reaching approximately 20,000 children and their families.

Plenary Session - *Safe City Mississauga: The Safest City Report

Safe City Mississauga is a registered charitable organization founded in 1992 to help reduce criminal opportunity and criminal victimization in Mississauga. The organization provides resources, staff, professional community leadership and guidance for crime prevention programs and activities; encourages crime prevention education within the public, private and voluntary sectors; and researches, develops and implements new community crime prevention programs and activities.

Each year, Safe City Mississauga is responsible for the annual release of the Safest City Report. This study calculates the crime rates, counts, and severity in the City of Mississauga and the Toronto Census Metropolitan area, longitudinal from 2008. The presentation will share how crime trends have changed within Mississauga and will inform audiences of the volume and severity of criminality over time. In addition, the presentation will provide information regarding Safe City Mississauga's crime prevention programs and initiatives, three of which have been awarded the ISCPP Community-Based Program of the Year.
